Journal of Tropical Agriculture

Aims and scope. Journal of Tropical Agriculture publishes scientific articles concerned with all aspects of crop science, agroecosystem management, and conservation, and in particular the application of biological, engineering, ecological, and social knowledge to the management of agricultural crops in the tropics including plantation and horticultural crops. The scope of the journal includes all agroecosystems in the tropics. The journal aims to advance communication among scientists in disparate fields who share a common interest in tropical agriculture, and to narrow the gap between research workers, farm managers, and extension personnel in the field for mutual benefit.

Full-length research articles, short communications reviews and critical comments are published in the journal. All contributions will be subjected to a rigorous peer-reviewing process. In addition, the papers are considered for publication in the journal on the understanding that the matter contained in the article neither has been published nor is being considered for publication elsewhere. The authors are advised to consult the "guide to authors" and/or a current issue of the journal for style and format. The concurrence of all authors (for multi-authored papers—all co-authors) and the institution, which sponsored the research is necessary and a declaration to that effect must be furnished at the time of submission of the manuscripts (for format, please visit the website www.jtropag.in).
